

Preparing for Final Examination
(for those not doing a course project)

Our final exam is scheduled on

Tuesday, May 6, 12noon–2pm in KCB 201

- The final is worth this fraction of the overall course grade:
 $200/900$.

This is approximately 22.22% of the overall course grade.

- It will be closed-book, closed-notes, and you won't be able to use any electronic devices.

You only need to bring writing implements; paper will be provided.

Preparing for Final Examination

- Everything we've covered in the course could feature on the final.
 - I'm not going to expect you to remember obscure facts.
 - I'm not going to test you on material from the book not touched on in the lectures.
 - Any proofs I ask you to do will be much shorter than those on the problem sets.

But take care to make any proofs very complete and detailed: you are trying to communicate to me that you understand what you doing; if you are too brief, I won't know that.

- Material featured on problem sets will be emphasized.
- But there will be some questions (or parts of questions) that test your knowledge of other things studied in the course.
